This paper provides the Joint Audit and Ethics Committee with a report on progress in delivering our responsibilities as your external auditor.

The paper also includes:

- a summary of emerging national issues and developments that may be relevant to you; and
- a number of challenge questions in respect of these emerging issues which the Committee may wish to consider (these are a tool to use, if helpful, rather than formal questions requiring responses for audit purposes)

Members of the Joint Audit and Ethics Committee can find further useful material on our website where we have a section dedicated to our work in the public sector. Here you can download copies of our publications. Click on the following link to be directed to the website <https://www.grantthornton.co.uk/>.

If you would like further information on any items in this briefing, or would like to register with Grant Thornton to receive regular email updates on issues that are of interest to you, please contact either your Engagement Lead or Engagement Manager.

Financial Statements Audit

We have started planning for the 2018/19 financial statements audits and will undertake our interim audit in 2019. Our interim fieldwork visit is expected to include:

- updated review of the control environment
- updated understanding of financial systems
- review of Internal Audit reports on core financial systems
- early work on emerging accounting issues
- early substantive testing.

We expect to issue our joint audit plan summarising our approach to the key risks on the audit in January 2019.

Value for Money

The scope of our work is set out in the guidance issued by the National Audit Office. The Code requires auditors to satisfy themselves that; "the authority has made proper arrangements for securing economy, efficiency and effectiveness in its use of resources".

The guidance confirmed the overall criterion as: "in all significant respects, the audited body had proper arrangements to ensure it took properly informed decisions and deployed resources to achieve planned and sustainable outcomes for taxpayers and local people".

The three sub criteria for assessment to be able to give a conclusion overall are:

- Informed decision making
- Sustainable resource deployment
- Working with partners and other third parties.

We will begin our initial risk assessment to determine our approach in December 2018.

We will report our work in the Joint Audit Findings Report and give our Value For Money Conclusions by the deadline of 31 July 2019.

Other areas

Meetings

We met with the Chief Finance Officer in November as part of our quarterly liaison meetings and continue to be in discussions with finance staff regarding emerging developments and to ensure the audit process is smooth and effective.

Events

Our annual accounts workshop is expected to take place early in the new year. We will be inviting key members of your finance team to this.

Sector Update

Policing services are rapidly changing. Increased demand from the public and more complex crimes require a continuing drive to achieve greater efficiency in the delivery of police services. Public expectations of the service continue to rise in the wake of recent high-profile incidents, and there is an increased drive for greater collaboration between Forces and wider blue-light services.

Our sector update provides you with an up to date summary of emerging national issues and developments to support you. We cover areas which may have an impact on your organisation, the wider Police service and the public sector as a whole. Links are provided to the detailed report/briefing to allow you to delve further and find out more.

Our public sector team at Grant Thornton also undertake research on service and technical issues. We will bring you the latest research publications in this update. We also include areas of potential interest to start conversations within the organisation and with audit committee members, as well as any accounting and regulatory updates.

Progress made ensuring disabled victims get access to justice

A report published by HMICFRS on the progress made on the 2013 joint report: Living in a Different World since the last update in 2015 highlights some significant improvements in handling cases involving disability hate crime. There are also signs that the number of cases being identified correctly as hate crimes are increasing, and there has been an increase in the number of successful applications for sentence uplifts due to cases containing elements of disability hate crime.

While praising the work already done, the report makes recommendations to further improve performance. These include recommendations regarding the identification and investigation of cases involving disability hate crime, and of the coordination of work between the police and CPS in these matters. It is also recommended that a number of changes are made to better highlight and explain cases to the court and defence where an increase in sentencing is required due to the offence being motivated wholly or in part by hostility towards a disability.

HMICFRS Value for Money profiles 2018

HMICFRS has published the latest Value for Money profiles, which provide comparative data on a wide range of policing activities for each police force in England and Wales. Value for Money profiles help forces make better decisions by identifying areas where improvements can be made in cost and performance.

Using browser-based software, users can now view interactive dashboards and select the data points that interest them most and generate reports tailored to their own interests.

Policing front line review

At the 2018 Police Federation annual conference held on 23 May, the Home Secretary announced that he would conduct a review of front-line policing. Sponsored by the Minister of State for Police and the Fire Service, the front-line review will provide police officers and staff throughout England and Wales with the opportunity to share their ideas for change and improvement in policing.

The review, which will engage officers and staff of chief superintendent rank and below (or equivalent), will ask the front line for feedback on access, availability and their experience of support and development services, with a view to identifying opportunities to improve existing provisions. Whilst the review will not address pay, resourcing or demand, as work led by the National Police Chiefs' Council and its partners is already ongoing to explore these issues, it will look to ensure front-line, operational experience continues to inform operational decision-making and government policy development.

The Home Office started front-line engagement in summer 2018, using several digital channels to collect feedback and ideas from the front-line and this data is now undergoing analysis in collaboration with the Office for National Statistics (ONS). The next step in the review is to test headline themes and trends identified during the initial phase of engagement with police across the country, to ensure resulting policy recommendations respond to the needs identified.

From November 2018, the Home Office will be holding a series of 28 face-to-face workshops in regional locations across the country, facilitated and moderated by ONS practitioners. Details of where and when each workshop will be taking place will be shared with police forces in each region, to support with promoting opportunities to engage locally. Review findings will be summarised in a report, which will be published in spring 2019.

Crime outcomes in England and Wales: year ending March 2018

The 2017/18 report on the outcomes that police forces have assigned to offences recorded by the police has been published, which covers the 43 territorial police forces in England and Wales, plus the British Transport Police.

Some of the key findings include:

- Police forces closed almost half (48%) of offences with no suspect identified, a similar proportion to last year. This proportion varied by crime type. Three quarters (75%) of theft offences were closed with no suspect identified, compared with around 7 per cent of rape offences and 2 per cent of drugs offences.
- It took police forces an average of 6 days to assign the outcomes they recorded in the year ending March 2018, a decrease of 2 days compared to the year to March 2017.
- Higher proportions of domestic abuse-related offences received a charge/summons than those that were not domestic abuse-related (15% and 9% respectively).
- There were 638,882 fraud offences recorded in the year end March 2018 which were reviewed by the National Fraud Intelligence Bureau (NFIB) for possible investigation and enforcement action.
